A Randomized Trial of Chemoradiotherapy and Chemotherapy after Resection of Pancreatic Cancer (March 18, 2004;350:1200-10). On page 1201, under "Adjuvant Therapy," the first sentence should have read, "Chemoradiotherapy consisted of a 20-Gy dose to the previous tumor bed given in 10 daily fractions over a two-week period plus an intravenous bolus of fluorouracil (500 mg per square meter of body-surface area on each of the first three days of radiotherapy) and again after a planned break of two weeks," rather than "a 20-Gy dose to the tumor given in 10 daily fractions over a two-week period plus an intravenous bolus of fluorouracil (500 mg per square meter of body-surface area on each of the first three days of radiotherapy and again after a planned break of two weeks)," as printed.

In This Week in the Journal (March 11, 2004;350:1069-70), there was an error in the figure of the molecular structure of estrone on page 1069; a corrected figure is shown here.
